

IS BEING EXTREMELY WEALTHY NECESSARY TO GET A RUSSIAN WIFE?

June 19, 2013

Rica

Judging by the number of men looking into them in online dating sites or through marriage services companies, having a Russian wife could easily top the list of dream wives that men have, if there is ever such a list. However, not everyone who would want a Russian bride follows through with their dream. This is just so sad because there are hundreds, perhaps thousands, of potential partners out there that one can hook up with. What could be the reason why some men would just be content with having that on their wish list and not pushing through?

A reason for this could be the myths that are floating around with regards to Russian women. One of these myths is that Russian girls will only marry men who are extremely wealthy. Photos of wealthy men, whether young or old, on their yachts and their Russian wives hooked to their sides are now common. Russian women also look like they prefer a flashy and opulent lifestyle as they look like they enjoy being dressed in furs and having all that nice jewelry. Of course there are people who live like that in their daily lives. However, the reality is that they are just the minority.

On the average, ordinary working men have as much chance of getting a Russian wife as their extremely wealthy counterparts. The key here is that they have work. Extreme wealth is not a prerequisite but having a stable income is. Women, Russian or not, want to have a partner who can provide for them throughout their married life. At the very least, being financially stable is necessary for all the expenses associated with the paperwork in getting your Russian girlfriend to come over to your country, or for you to come go get her in Russia. And that is just the beginning, as you will also have to spend for your wedding ceremony and for your married life together.

This is not to say that Russian women are materialistic and lazy, that all they know is to spend the money that their husbands have worked so hard for. In fact, most of the women that one would meet in online dating sites have their own careers and are professionals in their own right. However, they are not averse to sticking to traditional roles once they get married. This means that if you prefer that you be the sole provider for your family and your wife should stay at home to take care of the house and kids, a Russian wife will not object to that arrangement. She will welcome this since she sees the importance of being a strong partner to her husband at home.

Having this kind of arrangement with your Russian wife will only be possible if you are financially stable. You will never be able to provide for a wife, whether she is from Russia, from your country, or from any part of the world, if you do not have a stable income. Thus, from the perspective of a woman who is looking for a husband, this is not about being materialistic or being out to get a guy's money, but on the contrary, this is about being practical for their future as a family, especially if they want to have children later on.

Alex Vidal

Share this:

Related

Why Russian Wives Are In Demand Right Now

May 31, 2013

In "Russian Women"

Free Russian Personals - Reasons to Date Russian Women

November 11, 2013

In "Russian Women"

Top Reasons Why Men Want To Marry Russian Women